occasion. It is to be an all-day picnic, with an abundance to eat, drink and smoke, and a business meeting will follow the dinner.

Colonel Charles T. Loehr, of this city, one of the men who was in the war from beginning to end, has prepared the following summary of the fights in which the "Old First" was a participant:

It was on a bitter cold day, December 12, 1862, when the First Virginia regiment was about to take its place in line of battle in front of Fredericksburg.

General James L. Kemper, who commanded the brigade, addressed the regiment in the following words: "Men of the First Virginia regiment, you who on so many battlefields have gained the name of the 'Bloody First,' your country calls again on you, and I know you will do your duty."

These words stated but facts, as history will show, that in the battles in which the regiment participated were the battle of Bull Run, July 18, 1861, the forty-eighth anniversary of which will be celebrated on Monday, July 19, next. The loss in this battle was 13 killed and 28 wounded out of a total of 58 lost in that battle. July 21 the battle of Manassas was fought and won. The men were subjected to a heavy cannonade, and more than 7 were more or less wounded.

In the trenches of Yorktown on April 21, 1862, E. M. Ferneyhough was killed and M. Wingfield wounded by a shell. At Williamsburg, on May 5, 1862, in an hour's battle in a drizzling rain, it were killed 21 wounded and 4 missing. Most of the wounded, among them Colonel L. B. Williams, were left in the enemy's hands.

Seven Pines, May 31, 1862—Killed, 1; wounded, 5; and 6 missing. Considering the small number present, the loss was fearful in proportion.

Second Manassas, Aug. 30, 1862—Killed, 11; wounded, 28, and 2 missing about one-third of those engaged.

At the battles of Boonesboro or South Mountain and Sharpsburg, Sept. 10 and 13, 1862—Wounded, 8, and 3 missing were reported.

Fredericksburg, Dec. 13, 1862—Wounded, 9; 1 missing.

The regiment came out without loss in the skirmishes in North Carolina and Suffolk.

Gettysburg, July 3, 1863—Pickett's charge. Here the regiment was, so to say, wiped out. Of about 950 men present, the loss was 23 killed, 77 wounded and 13 taken prisoners; a loss of 113 men.

Plymouth, N. C., April 17 and 18, 1864—Killed and 6 wounded were reported.

Draughon's Bluff, May 16, 1864—Killed, 12; wounded, 25, and 3 missing.

The Howlett house, under shelling of the combined navy, the loss was 2 killed and 8 wounded.

Several more were wounded in the skirmishes in the Howlett house in the winter of 1864.

Dinwiddie Courthouse and Five Forks, March 21 and April 1, 1865—The loss in killed, wounded and prisoners was nearly 100, and a few days thereafter, at Sailor's Creek, April 6, 1865, 75 more were added to the long list of casualties.

Appomattox Courthouse, the closing scene, left 17 present to surrender, while over 200 filled the Northern prison pens, where many gave up their lives for a cause for which they fought so well.

PAPER EATING KILLS WOMAN

Five Feet of Wads Removed from Intestines—Broke Her Toes

PARIS, ILLA.—July 16.—Mrs. Schaeffer, twenty years old, died in her home here yesterday after an operation, in which five feet of paper wads were removed from her intestines.

Miss Schaeffer had eaten paper when she was a child. Her parents tried in vain to break her of the habit, and when she was twelve years old, an operation was performed just before the doctors said to save her life. She was kept on a starvation diet, and almost daily members of her family took balls of paper by force from between her teeth. As soon as newspapers were read they were passed to her right hand to leave of books, and even took in the house was put out of her way.

Six months ago the young woman took a vow she would overcome her habit, and it was thought she had kept her promise for two days ago she fell ill, and this morning an operation became necessary to remove what the girl had tricked her family by eating the brown wrapping paper brought into the house around packages.

—GIRL'S DRAMATIC DEATH

Directed Shot by Mirror as She Took

BALTIMORE, MD.—July 16.—Miss Letitia Bangs, twenty-three years old, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. John Bangs of Maryland Avenue, killed herself yesterday afternoon while reclining in a bathtub. She had been a sufferer from insanity. She had been told her mother, who is invalid, to take a nap while she took a bath. Twenty minutes later she was a muffled report, but fully awake and dressed before the bathroom was found open, and the girl found dead. In her right hand was a revolver, with the muzzle resting on a wound in her breast. She had placed there a small piece of court plaster as though she had been shot. A small cabinet, surmounted by a mirror, into which she had gazed in directing the shot.

FRITZ SCHIEFFER MAY PURCHASE VIRGINIA HOME

BIG STONE GAP, WISE CO., July 16.—It is probable that Mme. Fritz Schieffer, the grand opera singer, who is the wife of John Fox, Jr., the author, will become a property holder in Virginia as negotiations are in progress for the purchase of "Poplar Hill" reservation, an eight acre tract valued at several thousand dollars. The property is in the center of Big Stone Gap, overlooking the town from a slight elevation, on which will build a beautiful home.

Mme. Schieffer, who was successful in her engagement in New York last season in Henry M. Besson's play, "Tosca Donna," and her husband are spending the summer at Mr. Fox's mountain bungalow and the "song bird" whom Padewski referred to as "the little devil of comic opera," has become popular with the mountaineers of Southwest Virginia, who have prevailed on her mother, June, actress, to sing at the royal opera in Berlin, who is now here to spend a few weeks' vacation in the Old Dominion. In view of the accustomed annual trip she had formerly made to Germany.

The grand opera singer is deeply interested in athletic sports and has presented to the Big Stone Gap Athletic Association "Fritz Schieffer baseball cap," 10 in. in diameter, personally by teams of the Con. Fields League in a series commencing each year immediately after the Fourth of July and continuing through to September.

She has also been responsible for the organization of the "Mountain Golf Club," which is now playing its initial series in the baseball park.
